world. It is almost incredible that buman beings can live in a civilized state and yet hold to a philosophy which justifies the downright and random murder of men, women and children.

New York City has not, theatrically onsidered, gone wholly to the vaudeville logs. It was ready with a hearty and healthy wecome to Irving and Miss Terry in the most legitimate style of drama. And presently, when the grand opera season shall open, the metropolis will extend also a splendid greeting to the tramatic music.

Napoleon's Bad Table Manners.

The great Napoleon Bonaparte had disgusting table manners. Burienna, his secretary, and Sir George Cockburn, Admiral of the vessel that carried him to St. Helena, confirm other authorities who described him as eating with his fin gers. He was a small eater, getting the nourishment his system required from milk and wine rather than solid foods. He rarely ever used his knife, we are told, and instead of picking up the morsels of food with a fork or spoon he lipped his fingers in his plate and picked up bits that dripped sauce or gravy on his waistcoat.
